

Show and Tell

- My show and tell is an old watch
- Belonged to my grandfather
- A pocket watch not the type you wear
- Made by Seiko corp.
- It's a gold colour with black numbers
- Still works well
- I keep it in my room
- It reminds me of Shimane (his hometown)

“My show and tell today is my grandfather's watch. It is an old watch and not like the new watch that you wear on your hand (wrist) but you keep in your pocket. So It is called a pocket watch. The watch is made in Japan by the Seiko Corp., a famous watch company in Japan. The colour is gold and the numbers on the watch (face) is black. It is quite small but heavy and it still works well but I don't use it (because I am afraid I might damage it or lose it. I always keep it in my room and I sometimes look at it when I want to remember my granddad. It reminds me of Shimane because he lived there and we would visit him there every summer. Thank you”

(teacher's questions)

How much do you think it costs?

How did you get the watch? Did your grandfather give it to you?

Or another family member passed it on to you?

Do you still visit Shimane often?

Do you still have family that live in Shimane?

Does the Seiko company still make watches?

What kind of watch do you have/wear?

What kind of person was your grandfather?

Will you pass the watch onto your children/grandchildren?
